

How To Profit From Your Divorce

By P.A. Ross

PRESS RELEASE

Combining his own experience with extensive research, P.A. Ross provides a deeply personal, honest and passionate story to help the 20 million people affected by divorce in the UK.

'An application of common sense and not to the divorce courts'

42% of UK marriages end in divorce, there are 133,000 new divorce cases in the UK every single year. 1 in 5 married couples (4 million) think their marriage will end in divorce and a further 4.25 million are living as a 'single' after their divorce. In total, one in three lives is affected by the Big D in the UK with many ex-couples now struggling to pay their legal bills.

Following nearly five years of his own acrimonious divorce -four lawyers, three barristers, six court appearances, four different judges, threats of bankruptcy, the list goes on- P.A. Ross realised there had to be another, better way, to draw the line under his broken marriage and get on with life. The Result? After nearly five years of hostility, Ross and his now ex-spouse removed their respective legal teams, got round the table and in a matter of ten days agreed upon an out of court 'clean break' settlement, which was swiftly ratified by the courts. Although the jury is still out on whether the UK divorce system helped or hindered his divorce, Ross has decided to share his candid, and sometimes confrontational, experiences with a view to helping the millions of families, and children, affected by the Big D.

In How to Profit from your Divorce, P.A. Ross 'thinks differently' by marrying his first-hand knowledge of divorce with twenty-five years working in corporate life to create a simple, and enlightening, Ten Point Step-by-Step Plan which he hopes will help all those affected by divorce. Divided into easy to follow stages Ross covers: The Solution -finding the one that is best for you and your own situation from divorce research, planning and lawyer due diligence, finding free cash to pay the high legal bills and most importantly putting your family and children first. By following his own plan Ross saved 50% in legal costs vs. the UK average cost of divorce, which is £44,000. Next up, The Need for Change, the world is a fast changing place, family lawyers and the system must change too. Inspiration and Resilience, here Ross shares his own deeply personal experiences and 'can do attitude' of how to overcome the emotional and stressful rollercoaster of divorce before continuing with the uplifting section of, The Next 10 Years, or as he refers to it, 'Sweating the Marital Assets'. In this section he covers how to make your retained finances work hard for you and offers reassurance, through personal and humorous stories of his travels, that there's a new life and world of opportunity after the Big D. Finally, Ross explores the implications of the newly coined 'Brexit Divorce' and provides strategies and plans on how to best manage your own divorce during the uncertain times ahead.

Accessible, erudite and deeply emotional How to Profit from your Divorce is indispensable to anyone affected by or thinking of divorce.

About the author: Born in Yorkshire and bred in Gloucestershire, P.A. Ross has made his way up the corporate ladder to the level of director; working for over twenty-five years for some of the world's most recognised companies including: Coca-Cola, Cadbury Schweppes and Ferrero. In 2006 -which he calls 'his nemesis year,' as a result of the loss of his mother and the breakdown of his marriage, he set up his own successful company and continues to work with business clients across the UK.
